Preparing marketing proposals

The Public Relations Manager/Marketing Communications Manager runs marketing communication drives. These include events and collateral with internal and external stakeholders. He/She also drives an internal and external communications plan. In turn, this leads to a greater return on investment. In this role, he/she must work closely with all other departments. He/She must ensure there is brand consistency across all markets for all product lines.

He/She ensures new marketing (including social media) campaigns meet sales targets. High quality materials are to be produced on time, and within the budget. He/She has to form good relationships with both local, international and key media (print and online). He/She spurs the property's brand name in social media spaces. He/She also needs to look closely at online reviews and respond suitably.

Tasks

- Assess market trends and developments.
- Carry out staff performance assessment processes.
- Carry out crisis management plans.
- Develop personal effectiveness at a supervisory level.
- Direct print production.
- Form marketing messages.
- Foster drive and enterprise in teams.
- Maintain the brand image.

Supporting Your Teen in Exploring Post-Secondary Pathways

Your teen will be pursuing their next phase of learning soon. You may be wondering about the various pathways available and how big a role you should play in helping them decide on their options.

Here is a summary of the post-secondary options available and 4 tips below on how you and your teen could explore them together.

1. Take a step back from your own expectations

Every teen is unique, including your own. Encourage them to think through their options by recognising their own strengths, interests and learning styles.

Do offer advice but avoid pressuring your teen to qualify for a certain pathway based on your own expectations and experiences.
